Subject: RE: SANRAL R573 Upgrade-Quarry 6A (Availability of the Draft Environmental Impact Report)
Date: Friday, 28 May 2021 12:29:00

Dear Steven,

Thank you very much for your email.

The issuing of the Draft Environmental Impact Report is by no means a final approval for the proposed project to commence. Once all comments have been received during the Draft EIR phase, a final report will be submitted to the Department of Mineral Resources and Energy for decision making. The applicant, SANRAL, requires confirmation that the proposed Quarry site is environmentally feasible before they can start to engage with the landowner regarding the land acquisition. The public participation process and ultimately the environmental approval by the DMRE (if granted) is by no means the final approval for SANRAL to start to mine on the property. It only allows SANRAL to proceed with coming to an agreement with the landowner as well as obtaining other approvals.

Kind Regards

Hi Kirthi

Thank you for report.

Are they going to go ahead and quarry, and if so, when will they begin?

Regards,
Steven
